College of the Siskiyou Instructional Program Review

Administration of Justice Program-Academic Degree Education (A.A., A.S.-T., C.O.A.)

Leigh Moore (Preparer and Contributor)

Program Description:

The Administration of Justice (ADJ) program consists of an Associate of Science (A.S.) degree, Associate of Science Degree for Transfer (A.S.-T.), and an 18-unit Certificate of Achievement (C.O.A.).

This program introduces students to the study of the criminal justice system in the United States. It offers students preparation for careers in a variety of criminal justice fields at the local, state, and federal levels, as well as Tribal judicial services. Coursework also prepares students interested in pursuing careers in the legal profession.

The Administration of Justice Program also offers a comprehensive Public Safety Training Program including a Modular Law Enforcement Academy and State-mandated training courses for the Law Enforcement Community.

Further, the Administration of Justice Program offers a Standards and Training in Corrections (STC) approved Juvenile Correctional Officer to Deputy Probation Officer Transfer Academy, twice per year.

a) Organization: The ADJ Program is under the direction and supervision of the Dean of Career and Technical Education. The ADJ faculty includes one full-time Faculty Instructor in the degree curriculum. In this past review cycle, one adjunct instructor was assigned to the program.
b) Primary purpose: The primary purpose of the program is to prepare students for careers in criminal justice and related fields. The A.S. and A.S.-T. also prepares students for further academic study in the legal field. Students receiving an A.S. or A.S.-T also are prepared to work in a variety of social service fields which are in contact with the justice system.
c) Whom you serve: We serve all students interested in seeking a degree in Administration of Justice, completing coursework which meets General Education requirements, or students interested in the subject matter to enhance their knowledge of the justice profession. Courses offer an emphasis for those interested in criminal justice careers, as well as students seeking education in law and social services which involve court intervention. Some students are presently employed as criminal justice professionals, and are seeking additional education to improve their knowledge and skills, which increases their opportunity for advancement in their agency.

Students in the Administration of Justice program live not only in our immediate service area (Siskiyou County), but from all over California and neighboring states, through our online courses.

d) Services provided: We offer curriculum leading to
   - Associate of Arts, Associate of Science degree,
   - Associate of Science for Transfer degree, and a
   - Certificate of Achievement.
   - Opportunities for internships with local agencies through our Occupational Work Experience Program have been explored, although no students have currently been enrolled in the last review cycle. Consideration is given to students entering courses with limited college-work experience.

e) How are services provided: Students are encouraged to meet with the Academic Advising/Counseling office prior to enrollment, and to continue to utilize guidance through that office throughout their academic career. Students are referred to the Academic Success Center when deemed appropriate, and are given additional academic support from the instructor if skills are needed to successfully complete the course.

f) Courses incorporate the latest in research and industry standards. This includes research within the industry which incorporates evidence-based evaluations and incorporates scientific methods to address issues in the criminal justice system.

   During the last curriculum revision process, three courses were approved for transfer to the University of California. Courses are reviewed every two years and updated to match C-ID description, appropriate objectives, and detailed student learning outcomes. Seven of the eight current course offerings per year are transferable to the University of California system, and all eight are transferrable to the California State University system. With the implementation of Cal-GETC, it is anticipated that the upcoming update will ensure courses remain transferrable, and those counted under general education will be reapproved.

   The ADJ faculty member responsible for transfer coursework is a member of the Student Learning Outcome (SLO) Committee, including ongoing standards and evaluation regarding learning outcomes.

   Courses required for the degree are offered on a Fall and Spring Semester cycle. Courses on the following cycle:

FALL	SPRING
ADJ 1001 Introduction to Criminal Justice	ADJ 1001 Introduction to Criminal Justice
ADJ 2002 Concepts of Criminal Law	ADJ 1517 Community and the Justice System
ADJ 1503 Legal Aspects of Evidence	ADJ 1505 Criminal Investigation
ADJ 2528 Criminology (Elective)	ADJ 2524 Introduction to Corrections

ADJ 2522, California Statutory Law (Spring offering), and ADJ 2525, Criminal Court Process (Fall offering), were offered in the latest program review cycle each offering cycle, although based on a lack of enrollment, the courses were cancelled.

The following is data regarding enrollment during the last review cycle:

Analysis: As seen, there is higher enrollment in Fall courses, with a drop in Spring enrollments. Some of this could be attributed to the ADJ 1001, which qualifies as an Area 4 Social Sciences general education course (UC) and first-time students are enrolled in the course for that reason.

External Factors with Significant Impact:

a) Budgetary Constraints or opportunities:
Budgetary Constraints: Not specifically noted.
Opportunities: Introducing cadets currently enrolled in the Modular Police Academy to information regarding completion of a degree in Administration of Justice would be desirable. Students could be provided with information regarding transfer requirements, and the benefit of advanced education in promotion opportunities as they progress through their career.
b) Competition from other institutions: In the North Far North region, several community colleges within districts with higher populations exist: Butte College (Chico, CA.), Shasta College (Redding, CA), and College of the Redwoods (Eureka, CA), all have degree programs.
c) The current A.S.-T. aligns with transfer to the California State University, Sacramento. In the last review cycle, an emphasis has been placed on making coursework transferrable to the University of California system.
d) Institutional regulation, policies, mandates: Recruitment and outreach during the last review cycle presented some overlapping issues with other staff taking the lead on recruitment.
e) Non-Institutional regulation, policies, mandates: There is an opportunity for growth with dual enrollment through area high schools. However, some area high schools readily accept college coursework as meeting Career Technical Education toward high school credits, while others do not. College of the Siskiyous intends to hire a Dual Enrollment Coordinator/Counselor who may be able to work with area high schools in finding a method to allow increased enrollment through local high schools (see high school enrollment numbers in graph below).

f) Job market:
    - Requirement of prospective employers: The Administration of Justice degree includes students wishing to attend a POST academy, but also are students seeking work in corrections, law, social work, and other related fields. The requirements for different peace officer positions in California vary depending on the agency and the specific peace officer duties. For example, probation officers are normally required to have a Bachelor's Degree or an Associate's Degree. However, correctional officers may only be required to have basic training and certification through Standards and Corrections (STC) Correctional CORE, but, advancement in a particular agency may require more advanced coursework.
    - Development: A significant development in the field of POST-certified peace officers is that officers will be required to earn a Modern Policing Degree, beginning with those hired on or after November of 2025. College of the Siskiyous anticipates offering this degree in Fall of 2025.

Progress on Outcomes Assessment:

a) Summarize progress on (Student Learning Outcome) SLO measures: Since the last review cycle, COS has implemented a robust SLO assessment effort, including the formation of an SLO Committee, in which the ADJ faculty member is a committee member.
In the Fall of 2023, the course with consistently the highest enrollment, ADJ 1001 was assessed, and showed that students who remained in the course and engaged in coursework overwhelmingly met or exceeded SLOs for that course. There were three students who stopped engaging in the course but could not be dropped (based on the point in the course where dropping was not an option), and as a result did not meet SLOs. Two students met some but not all of the SLOs for the course, and this small sampling was the result of only marginal engagement from the students. Therefore, it appears that SLOs are appropriately met in ADJ 1001 when students complete the variety of learning activities throughout the course.
In the Spring of 2024, ADJ 2524 was assessed. All students in that course met or exceeded expectations in all SLOs identified. The sampling was smaller, but one notable fact is the students taking ADJ 2524 tend to identify Administration of Justice as their major. This data is consistent with the last review cycle which showed the same or similar results.
At the conclusion of the Fall 2024 semester, ADJ 1503 will be assessed.

b) Specific adjustments: Three courses were converted to ZTC in the Fall of 2024. This created additional consideration to ensure that material provided ensured effective learning for the course. Some modifications are made when a particular SLO is showing concern.

c) The plan within the next two-year cycle will be to complete SLO assessments on all SLOs within at least one course each semester.

Institutional Program Effectiveness Indicators:

Below is data on students who completed a degree for transfer. As considered below, although ADJ is a CTE program and A.A./A.S.-T. might be the educational objective for students, this is an area which needs improvement.

It will be the intent of this program to collaborate with the Advising and Counseling office to increase student knowledge regarding transfer options, encourage students to consider transfer to a four-year degree, and identify any supports needed to increase this area of interest for students in the ADJ program.

Success Rate: There was a decline in successful completion of courses between Fall of 2022 and Fall of 2023. As previously mentioned, one course (ADJ 1001) is attempted by a large array of students who are fulfilling general education requirements and may or may not be majoring in ADJ. This is believed to impact success rates in this course. In ADJ 1503 in Fall of 2023, the course was offered by an adjunct professor. The professor used a supplemental program which accompanied the textbook, in order to grade assessments.

Effective Fall of 2024, the supplemental program is no longer being used, and each exam question is vetted. This was another course which was converted to ZTC and it is the opinion of this author that accompanying test questions are particularly vague and therefore, scrutiny of each test question is necessary prior to opting its use. It is anticipated that all the students in ADJ 1503 in Fall of 2024 will successfully pass the course.

The goal for success rates in all ADJ courses is 90% or higher. Although 100% success is most desirable, for the reasons outlined regarding the ADJ 1001 course, this appears to be an appropriate goal.

Below (following page) are the success rates for ADJ courses for Fall 2022 and Fall 2023, and for Spring 2023 and Spring 2024:

Other Unit Specific Quantitative and Qualitative Research:

This will be addressed in Evaluation.

Evaluation:

In the following pages, data regarding student representation, including gender, race, age of students, modality of coursework, and other data considerations are explored.

Student demographics are considered and focus on recruiting and engaging students in underrepresented groups is a priority. Although there appears to not be a significant gender disparity in the current measurements, racial disparities continue to exist, in comparison to the service area's overall demographic.

The author and faculty member of this report has engaged with community members, particularly the large Indigenous population in Siskiyou County. While Native Americans make up nearly 6% of the county's population, data regarding their representation in the ADJ courses is unknown, which is a significant concern. During the last review cycle, only 1% of the student population was identified as Native American. Efforts to maintain and further those partnerships are ongoing.

Modality of instruction. Up until Fall of 2024, all ADJ degree program coursework was offered through distance learning, the result of a grant converting this to a fully online degree offering. It is the intent of the program to consider student learning needs, including offering additional modalities if viable. One course in the Fall of 2024 was offered in-person, with a 100% success rate and no drops.

Summary of Evaluation: Certain student groups remain underrepresented, and data is inconclusive as to the severity of that gap. However, ongoing efforts are being made to engage community members and increase partnerships.

Evidence-based practices in policing, corrections, and court practices is the focus of the curriculum within the ADJ degree program. Students are actively engaged in research and analysis as to the latest issues facing the criminal justice system, and utilizing proven strategies and methods to address those issues.

In review of resources, the Regional Training Center adjacent to the Modular Academy is an avenue for future course offerings, as well as engagement with community stakeholders. For example, the Karuk Tribe has requested short-term justice courses for their judicial staff. However, internal logistics has prevented from this being explored further. It is anticipated that in the next review cycle, engagement and collaboration with justice partners such as the Karuk Tribe will allow the program to grow and meet the needs of the community.

The ADJ program has one full-time faculty member. No administrative support is utilized based on organizational structure at this time. However, there is opportunity to extend outreach through current available staff (i.e. CTE coordinator).

Vision:

- Based on the passage of AB 89, which reforms the educational requirements for peace officers who work in California and fall under the certification of Peace Officers Standards and Training (POST), increased program interest, enrollment and completion is expected in the next review cycle. Although not an ADJ degree, some coursework in ADJ is required. Therefore, growth is expected.
- Collaboration with the Regional Training Center would be a significant development for the ADJ and Academy Programs. Short-term training courses that are certified by Standards and Training in Corrections (STC) and POST could have a significant and positive impact on the programs and translate to increased enrollment in ADJ degree courses. It would also benefit industry partners and the community at large.
- Continue to engage community stakeholders, including those who are underrepresented in the criminal justice field.
- Engage in discussions and increase collaboration with area high schools for dual enrollment opportunities. CTE requirements in high school could be a viable pathway to increased interest not only in the industry but also in completing college coursework while in high school.

Progress of Prior Goals:

- Many of the courses slated for review and possible approval for UC transferability were approved during the last review cycle. One additional course will be submitted for UC transfer (ADJ 2002), and all courses are up for mandatory revision in March (2025). During that time, the revisions will be made to ensure ADJ 1001 remains an Area 4 general education course.
- As mentioned previously, outreach with the community, including the Karuk Tribe, was achieved, however, further efforts will be a priority. Effective and equitable representation of our community continues to be a focus for the ADJ program.

Continuous Quality Improvement:

Vision of the program addresses several areas of the intent for continuous quality improvement. Priorities for the coming review cycle:

1. Submit the Modern Policing Degree (AB 89 requirement) to the Chancellor’s Office, for targeted offering in the Fall of 2025.
2. Engage educational stakeholders such as local area high schools, to explore possible dual enrollment options for high school students.

3. Ensure that ADJ courses continue to be transferable to the UC system, and maintain continuity with the Cal-GETC transition.
4. Engage in ongoing recruitment efforts.
5. Increase student success through measured assessments and redesign of activities, assessments, and exams to ensure maximum success.

Closing the loop:

Although a CQIPs was submitted in the Spring of 2023 for library resources to meet the needs of students unable to purchase a textbook, that submission fell off the IPB agenda, based on a determination it was a low-priority item. No other Resource Allocation Request (RAR) has been submitted from this program.
